Camera Obscura Nature's Living and Moving Cyclorama!

SEE HOW THE WORLD MOVES.

More wonderful than the greatest painting, because its figures are alive and moving. And still more wonderful because the beautiful colors of nature are concentrated in their most gorgeous shades.

The Camera Obscura is fascinatingly interesting and everyone should see it.

THE PACINIC

One hundred and eight passengers left on the Korea vesterday afternoon for San Francisco. According to Mr. Klebahn, of the Pacific Mail S. S. agency here, this is the largest number of first-class passengers ever carried from Honolulu to the Coast on a single

It was an inspiring sight for an hour before the steamer loosed her lines and steamed out to sea. The Hawaiian Band was present on the dock and played, not only for all the passengers, as is its custom, but for Major Genera-Corbin, U. S. A., in particular. The music was thoroughly enjoyed by the through passengers and the passengers leaving from this port were pleased with the delightful melody wafted to the high decks in their honor.

Crowds of people swarmed over the decks and even then there was plenty of room for more without crowding. There was a wealth of leis and flowers adorning the going-away people, and when finally the gang-way was lowered and the vessel steamed slowly out of the slip there seemed only a waving mass of flowers over the rails and a white, fluttering response of handkerchiefs was seen on the dock. As the steamer went out national airs of various countries were played by the band.

A large crowd of Japanese left on the Korea for the Coast. Most of these. were Japs who had arrived but two or three weeks since from Japan.

Bulger and Captain O. F. Bolles, government inspectors of steam vessels, have been at Honolulu making an annual inspection of the steamers plying in the inter-island trade. They returned vesterday on the Manchuria.

There was one of the regulation fire and boat drills during the voyage and at the conclusion of the drill an exhibition was given to illustrate, for the benefit of passengers, just how a life preserver should be used. A discussion followed in which nearly all the passengers voiced disapproval of the tule life preserver. Bulger took up the cudgels for the government-approved belt with a probability of several more be and proceeded to demonstrate the superiority of the article the passengers con-

Two large tubs were filled with salt water, into each was thrown a life preserver, one of cork and the other filled with tules.

Now the weight in the water of a 200pound human being is less than ten pounds. The government requires that all life preservers must have sufficient moyancy to support twenty-four pounds n the water.

Bulger secured two chunks of lead, each weighing twenty-nine pounds. "So far as I am concerned, I do not see why the Board of Education feets bound to start new schools in buildings provided for by the Legislature, when the same Legislature deliberately failed to provide fer new teachers.

MELODRAMA AT

Buhler's versatile players received a warm welcome at the Orpheum last night in "The Lighthouse by the Sea," the great scenic melodrama which is now drawing the crowds. From the boxes, orchestra, dress circle and gallery the plaudits followed fast and the enthusiasm all the way through. The sympathy of the people for the old blind lightkeeper, so well played by Lowell, was very manifest, and their admiration of the young pilot and the lightkeeper's daughter, played by Buhler and Brenda Fowler, respectively, was very evident. They marveled at the great villainy of Drum and Wilkes, as plotters against the happiness of the lighthouse family, roared with delight at the funnyisms of Louise Orendorf and Place as an inimitable Irish couple, and found a fund of rich entertainment in the performance of Juliette Chandler and Auerbach as "the help." Nothing of the effect of the sensational scenes was lost and the stage settings were excellent. The crowd was thoroughly pleased.

"The Lighthouse by the Sea" will be presented again this afternoon at the matinee. It is a play sure to delight the children, being full of adventure of a stirring nature, giving rich reward to virtue and delivering justice to the wrongdoer. It is full of romance, excitement and genuine fun. In the evening the play will be re-

"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," the dramatization of Robert Louis Stevenson's wonderful story, will be presented Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of next week. Richard Buhler will play Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. The play has created a tremendous sensation in Europe and America.
